

BRIEF BIOGRAPHIC SKETCH

Giovanni Pagano

Giovanni Pagano has a 40 year-long experience in environmental and biomedical research. He has published over 100 articles, 25 book chapters, and two books as Editor, with over 2,000 citations. Experience in EC- and NATO-supported grants. Formerly senior scientist at the Italian National Cancer Institute in Naples, visiting scientist in France, UK, Greece and Turkey; multi-decade-long guest researcher at the Anton Dohrn Zoological Station.

Currently Research Contractor at Federico II Naples University,

Department of Chemical Sciences; member, "Comité de Surveillance et d'Information sur les Rejets en Mer", Prefecture de Marseille - Bouches du Rhône.

Current main interests: rare earth elements-associated health effects; methods in evaluating complex mixture toxicity.